

Small Supplier Payment Policy

THE KITCHENARY

1. Overview

The Kitchenary is committed to building strong long-term partnerships with our suppliers through fair and equitable dealings. The Kitchenary recognises that payment terms are an important component of our commercial arrangements with small suppliers.

2. Payment terms for small suppliers

Where a small supplier meets The Kitchenary definition of a “small supplier” (see section 3) and also follows the best practice procedures (see section 4), The Kitchenary will offer payment terms not exceeding the latter of 30 days from (i) receipt of a correctly rendered invoice; and (ii) the date the goods are delivered.

Regular reviews will be performed to assess whether suppliers continue to satisfy the definition of a small supplier and follow the best practice procedures as outlined in this policy. If a supplier ceases to do so, they may be contacted to re-negotiate their payment terms.

3. Definition of small supplier

For the purposes of this policy, a supplier is considered to be a “small supplier” if:

- the supplier is a registered Australian business.
- the total annual revenue of the supplier (and its related entities) does not exceed $10m.

4. Best practice procedures

In order to offer the payment terms set out in Section 2 above, The Kitchenary requests that (unless otherwise agreed):

- small suppliers accept digital purchase orders and issue digital invoices;
- we do not hold days stock on hand for the small supplier that routinely exceeds the number of days specified as the agreed payment terms;
- small suppliers register a request to be classified as a small supplier via the attached registration form.

5. How to initiate the change in payment terms

Any supplier that satisfies The Kitchenary’ “small supplier” definition and follows the best practice procedures outlined in this policy can submit a request for a change to payment terms via the below registration form. If you require further assistance please contact The Kitchenary via email at ap@thekitchenary.com.au.
